Our correspondent "Apo's Ghost" reminds us that we made no mention of the persecution suffered by CHUN ARAI, the compradore. of the Hongkong Club, in our remarks on the case of the notorious LEE LUM KWAI, and his signature calls to our remembrance the Chinese Government to prevent the export of the whole. It is usual for the chief engineer to fact that Apo was decapitated by the man- arms, to which they assented, and carefully and daring at Swatow for the crime of being rich ! and refusing to disgorge his wealth. She had always a time this took place the plate was left thinner: chemical action then set in again and formed a new deposit of scale, which in time was also exceristed or broken off from the stay. The tension on the flat end of the boiler is greater than on the cylindrical part. When the boiler is under steam the amount of expansion varies. There is a constant strain and twisting of the gusset stays when there is steam in the boiler, and this fret leaves a fresh surface of the iron to be acted upon The wear and tear in consequence of the chemical and mechanical action was more severe on the gusset stays than on any other part of the boiler. both sides being exposed to chemical action. A rolled plate is more dense and closer in the fibre on the cutside than in the centre and thereby resists exydisation more at the beginning of its use after this outer surface has been worn away the surface left, being more open in fibre, corweaker from the causes mentioned the deterioration arising from mechanical action would go on at a greatly increased ratio, so that during the last month previous to being severed the plates would fact that the first and eighth stays had entirely disappeared. I judge that they had suffered in:a greater degree from the chemical and mechanical action than the other six. The upper part of the partions of the stays remaining attached to the shell of the boller are simost of their original thickness. There was less tortion on that part, and it was further from the water level. The point of severance in all cases was within one or two inches of the angle iron on the end plate. blown out. I account for this by the mechanical motion I have mentioned. Taking into account the apidly increasing ratio in which the deterioration went on. I think it possible that four or five months ago the stays were not severed. One of them had been connected at the time of the explosion. I think it possible that an engineer might have gone into the boiler four or five months before the explosion, and making a casual inspection without having his attention The German gunboat Nautilus, Captain Valois, specially drawn to the defect in the stays, might of the revenue erwiser, and, that being so, he subhave supposed that they were in a fairly strong condition; indeed he could not have seen the defect without putting his head in between them, and feeling the thickness of the plates with his hand. An engineer having no special reason for supposing decay to be present; and observing only the upper part of the plates. might have thought that all were sound. An engineer who had been accustomed to round stave in that part of the boiler would be more likely to be deceived than another man who had been. acoustomed to flat stays, and therefore imagine By the Messageries Maritimes Company's them sound. Some engineers are theoretical as has had a scientific education he would be less able to understand the nature of metals. their expansion, strength, and the effects o corrosion on them. On some abstract questions there are differences of opinion among theoretical wen who have had practical experience. I do not think what I have stated about mechanical action is very generally known amongst engineers. As a rule engineers on merchant steamers are more practical than scientific: I would not class a chief engineer ignorant of this law of mechanical action as incompetent to act as chief engineer in consequence of At the Marine Court, yesterday, before Captain, that ignorance. A more thinness in a plate

The shells of both boilers of the Yesse are in good condition, and the boilers, with the The Foochow Herald commercial report, dated exception of these gusset stays, were very excelstays, whether round or flat, are not usually put into boilers of this size; they are generally put only into small boilers where longitudinal stays would interfere with the room necessary to clear the boiler. If all the stats had been intact and the end plate not impaired the safety valve might have been loaded to 30lbs. with safety. A portion of the end plate had been worn a little thin, but if the stays had been intact there would have been nodanger regulating the duties of engineers on board merchant steamors in port. The third engineer looks after the boilers, the second engineer looks after the engines, the first engineer supervises make periodical inspections himself. Under ordinary circumstances the chief engineer would inspect his boilers about once in six months. I cannot say whether it would or would not be likely that the chief engineer having looked at these stays six months ago The usual fortnightly entertainment at the would have found them intact. ing the greatest care and skill on the part of the engineers such accidents have happened . Re-examined by Mr. Sharp-I do consider that flat stays were improper to be put in this boiler, on account of the rapid deterioration to which they are subject, owing to the larger extent of surface they expose. I think any competent engineer ought to know that. An engineer ought to be more earcful of them supposing that he knew of their inherent defect. There is no actual rule as to how often the chief engineer shall make an examination of the boiler, but according to custom under ordinary circumstances he would inspect them once in site months. skilful chief engineer would make an examination whenever he thought it was necessary. If the survey of the starboard boiler of the Yesso as he boilers were in a weak state and corresion going on he ought to make an inspection more frequently than once in six months if he was aware of the defects. Mr. Sharp Are you of ominion that an ordinary careful engineer making a careful exami-nation could fail to become aware of the defects you have described?

Mr. Brereton-I object to the question on the ground that it is the issue to be tried and to be deduced from the evidence. Mr. Sharp thought it was a perfectly fair and

December 11th

WAN HO SANG V. WADE, $31.64.—This was claim brought by the steward of the Chinese revenue cruiser. Shen Chi against the commander Captain Wade. Mr. Donnys said he had been requested to at tend by the defendant, not to appear to the action, but simply to explain why the defendant was not present; he did not appear because the jurisdiction of the court was questioned. The case was one between the steward and commander of a Chinese revenue oruiser, and stood on precisely the same fosting as a case which Peng-chou-hai. The claim was one for wages arned on board the vessel. Supposing this money to be due in any way it was due from the Thinese Government to the plaintiff as steward

His Lordship said it was decided some time age that these ships were conceded the status of ien of war. He remembered the case of the Peng-chou-hai well, and it was then held the court had no jurisdiction to enter into questions beween the captain and men. The only question

n the merita, but it would not be vas, ought there not to be an affidavit Mr. Dennys said the defendant was very un well: he was ashore on account of his health and unable to leave the house: but he would be very glad to get an affidavit from him if the court thought it necessary. The Shen Chi was on precisely the same footing as the Peng-chouit was not in the employ of the Viceroy; ut of the Hoppo. Plaintiff was then called up and admitted that he plaintiff was the captain of the revenue ruser and that the claim was for wages carned His Lordship said an affidavit would not required now, and explained to the plaintiff that the court did not take cognisance of disputes beween the captain of a revenue erniser and his servants; that the debt if due at all was due ither from the Chinese Government or the espto the Chinese Government for it. Plaintiff said he was shipped in Hongkong, and herefore summoned defendant in Hongkong. His Lordship said that did not matter.

Mr. Dennys asked for soats. His Lordship said that as there was no ap pearance to the suit no costs could be given.

Summons dismissed. CHUN ASHING V. AITKEN, $12.—This was claim by chair coolies for a month's wages. Defendant did not deny that the wages had een earned, but said the plaintiffs left on the lat of the month without giving notice. When they came for their money he told them he would my them when he paid his other servants, on 15th. After this he received a summons. His Lordship said—that if the plaintiffs had been engaged from month to month, their wages very improper thing for them to leave without notice, and he would therefore allow them no costs. Judgment for plaintiff's without costs. THOMPSON V. THE MESSAGERIES MARITIMES

The plaintiff is the master and part owner of the British barque Mangerton, and seeks to re over compensation for the loss of employment of his ship from October 5th to the 20th during epairs rendered necessary by injuries she received defendants have admitted their liability and have man came and handed two letters to the last paid for the costs of repairs. The only question witness, who then handed them to him. This is a legitimate ground of at Canton. He noticed two clean unchliterated in his noble efforts to save the unfortunate sealamages, provided the plaintiff can prove the actual postage stamps on sub letter, but he did not loss. The Mangerton arrived with a cargo of coals notice the value of the stamps because it was the following morning the collision took place, said something to himabout payment of postage, and the plaintiff at once wrote to the defendant's and in compliance with what he said he gave manager here, M. du Pousy, informing him of $1.08. He did not know how much postage he

He sent the box with the two into thorough order shall be borne by you, and letters in it as usual. Since then he had no that all loss of time caused by the accident shall be made good to me." That is distinct notice that the plaintiff would require compensation for loss of time. The manager proposes a survey, mail arrived, on the 28th ultimo, he received and declines to pay damage until he has been two letters that had come by that Indian able to communicate with the Captain of the Volga. On the 28th September he writes that the captain will send a report by the English mail, and declines, for the present, responsibility. Surveys were held by Captain Burnie on the 21st on the part of the plaintiff, and by Captain McMurdo for the Company, Tenders were in bail. The prisoner was under a heavy security vited, and repairs were begun October 1st and at the Post Office, and if his Worship would vere finished on the 20th by the Hongkong and Whampsa Dock Company. It is proved by Mr. Wieler, who was plaintiff's agent, that soon after the Mangerton arrived, applications were made to charter her at 23 to 24 cents per picul. Fung prisoner. Fa. who is a shipbroker, states that he made the offer, but did not come to terms because the ship was not rendy. Youre Mun Choi also apolied to Mr. Wieler to charter a ship at the end of September and offered to pay 23 to 24 cents per picul. I think there is ample evidence that had the Mangerton been fit to go to sea. she would have been chartered at this rate The defence raised by Mr. Brereton is, as far as understand it, that had notice been given to M. du Poucy, the repairs might have been hurried on and the ship made ready by the 12th. I do not think that there was any obligation on the plaintiff to give notice of these offers, lthough it would have been better to do so. His letter of the 21st informed M. du Pouey generally that he should charge for loss of employment; and it is one of the natural results of damage by collision known to all nautical men and was to be expected. The more important question seems to me to be, was there any unnecessary delay?

Mr. Gillies answers this and proves that all due He saw a small boatslongside, and the prisoner and reasonable diligence was shown in carrying eitting on a box.
